THE ENCAMPMENT.

Routine Business Occupies the Greater Part of the Day—Palmer's Speech.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 21.—The twenty-sixth encampment of the G. A. R. began its session in Albaugh's opera house this morning. Routine business will occupy most of the day's session. General Palmer will read his report as commander-in-chief and the report of various standing and special committees will be made. The committee on pensions may offer a recommendation in service pensions. It is not proable that this system of pensioning will be raised. Prominent G. A. R. men say that the government is doing for its veterans all that could be asked or expected and that the time has not come for so generous an extension of the pension system. The "House of Lords" matter will excite a much lively discussion when it comes to the front. According to the constitution of the G. A. R. the three highest officers of the national organization and the department commanders are entitled to life seats and to votes in the encampment. Under this rule forty-seven life members of the encampment are selected each year and this contingent has been added until it almost equals the body of delegates elected from the departments. There has been a sentiment growing in the G. A. R. of late against allowing the past commanders to vote in encampments. The department of Massachusetts has several times introduced a resolution against it. This year Ohio will start the movement. The last state encampment at Piqua instructed the delegates to this effect. Something of a skirmish between the two leading departments may ensue, as Pennsylvania is warmly in favor of the old order of things. This contest may have its effect on the campaign for commander-in-chief. The color line will soon come up if the present declared intentions are carried out, but General Palmer will be sustained by an overwhelming vote. An effort will be made by Comrade T. T. Swinburne to secure from the Grand Army encampment an endorsement for the columbine as the national flower. He says in support of the suggestion: "Its name comes from the same root as Columbia, and is an exact translation of the Papyrine liberty cap, the head-dress of Columbia and the prototype of the cornucopia, the symbol of Columbia's land. Its botanical name is derived from the Latin for eagle, because its petals end in spurs resembling the talons of an eagle; its growth in red, white and blue, in colors; it has five trumpet-shaped petals, corresponding to the five points of the star upon our flag, and it is indigenous to the North American continent, a hardy perennial and wild flower that is found in every part of our land, growing even on the rocky mountains in the very heart of the country.

Rain began to fall soon after 10 o'clock this morning, not heavily, but still in sufficient volume, unpounded, as it was, by a cool east wind, to put a temporary damper upon many projected features of the day. The first incident of the day was the parade of the union veterans at 10 o'clock. About 1,500 veterans braved the elements, commanded by Gen. Green C. Smith. The parade formed on Pennsylvania avenue and Tenth street, and marched past the reviewing stand at the treasury department, where the veterans were reviewed by Vice President Morton, District Commissioner Ross, and Commander in Chief Yodee and staff. The line then broke ranks and dispersed about the city. The business feature of the day was the official meetings of the national encampment which took place at Albaugh's opera house. Commander-in-Chief Palmer was escorted to the place of meeting in the drizzling rain by the Union Veterans' corps and the "Old Guard," of Washington. At that time the streets were filled with a bedraggled crowd that in vain sought shelter under awnings and in doorways. Albaugh's theatre was decorated with great profusion of national and artistic arrangement. At 10:30 Adjutant General Phystercr called the encampment to order, when there were less than 500 delegates in the house, and presented Mr. B. H. Warren, of the citizens' executive committee, who introduced Hon. J. W. Douglass, president of the district board of commissioners, who welcomed the encampment to Washington.

After responding to Commissioner Douglas' address of welcome, the meeting was called to order, and General Parmer spoke as follows:

COMRADES—The National encampment of the Grand Army of the Republic brings together representative soldiers from all over the loyal land. There is scarcely a battlefield of that great civil contest but has its representative here today. Within its ranks are men of all political parties and religious creeds. The differences in rank which the army reflected are lost in the equalities of a free and common citizenship. The dominating thought is patriotism. Its principles appeal to patriots of every nation and party. It is peculiarly befitting that we should meet once more in the beautiful capital city of the nation, where the representatives of 65,000,000 of freemen gather to enact our laws, and look backward over the perils surmounted and forward to the growing greatness of a redeemed land.

"As we look back over the long line of distinguished comrades whose patriotic devotion to their country and inspiring presence upon the battle fields often times stimulated us to deeds of valor, but who no longer answer to "roll call" in our encampments, we are forcibly reminded that death has been busy in our ranks; but the memory of their heroic achievements and many virtues will live long after the Grand Army of the Republic ceases to exist. Let the example of their lives be an incentive to us all to so live and discharge our duties as citizens with that loyalty to country and fidelity to duty, so that when we shall have reached the end of life's journey and joined those gallant comrades whose lives were sacrificed to their country's liberty, future generations will read with wonder how two great armies met in battle for long years, where nearly a million men, on one side or the other, yielded up their lives in that great civil conflict, and when the contest ended those great armies melted away like the snow on the hill top under the beams of the noon-day sun, resuming the peaceful vocation of civil life. The nation moved on once more in a career of unparalleled progress, prosperity and happiness, so that when our names shall be inscribed on the roll of the dead of the Grand Army of the Republic we shall deserve to be remembered by those who survive us, and upon our last resting places may flourish the evergreens of a fond and enduring memory.

"During my official term I have visited twenty-five departments, responded to numerous invitations to reunions and public gatherings, requiring months of time and labor, traveling nearly 60,000 miles, and my only regret is that I was unable to meet with several departments, as they met on the same date, and the places of meeting were too far apart to reach them in time. And notwithstanding, I have given up nearly the entire year to the work of the order, I feel that my efforts have been but feeble to serve all my comrades and do justice to the great office.

"I will not trespass upon your patience by an attempt to enter into statistics. The reports of the staff officers contain full and detailed statements of the work of their respective departments, and I commend them to your careful perusal and consideration. I have been greatly aided in my efforts to serve you by efficient and generous support given me by members of my staff. In every department I have visited it was gratifying to notice the interest and enthusiasm manifested by the comrades for the welfare of the order, and while the effects of locks and furrowed cheeks of many marked the advance of time, the hopes of years to come cooled their fervor for the flag, or their determination to hold on high the standard of our order and, while we have sustained many losses by death and suspension, we are greeted by few from delinquent reports. Nevertheless I take great pride in saying to you that the reports show an increase for the year.

General Palmer then related the history of the trouble in the department of Virginia and Louisiana, arising out of the refusal of that department to recognize Posts Nos. 8 to 17, composed of colored veterans. Under the laws of the order the commander in chief was obliged to suspend in succession the department commander, the senior vice commander and the junior vice commander of that department. An attempt was made by the department to surrender the charter, but this failed owing to a lack of compliance with the proper requirements in such cases. Finally, on June 8, 1892, Post Commander A. B. Hall was placed in command of the department, which was then reorganized and is now in a flourishing and prosperous condition. "The life of an organization," says the commander-in-chief in concluding this portion of his report, "like the life of a man, should be considered honor to the fullness of its time, or it may expire prematurely for want of proper guidance, by violence or internal disorder. So apparently trivial is likely to bring about a complete dissolution of this department, was saved by a critical operation and the dying patient's life was extended for future years of prosperity and usefulness."

General Palmer then referred to terms of commendation to the Women's Auxiliary association and the Sons of Veterans, which he declared deserved the cordial support of every member of the Grand Army of the Republic. He also urged a continued observance of Memorial day.

"Let it teach the rising generation," said he, "that the liberty and the government which were established and sustained at such terrible cost, should be yielded up by them, only when, like the men who wore the blue, they rest with honor in a soldier's grave; and should the men of future years be compelled to surrender the rights that were established upon so many battle fields by those men, and become cold or callous in their love for country and its institutions, may the memory of the green mounds spread all over the land, covering the remains of the loyal boys in blue who yielded up their lives with its hopes and pleasures for freedom and fatherland, hold them firmly to public virtue."

Regarding pensions, General Palmer says no additional legislation is asked, the efforts of the pension committee being directed to correcting inequalities. The work of the Grant Monument association was reviewed, and the recommendation made that the Republican national committee ask department commanders to make an appeal to their respective posts for a contribution of five cents from each member to create a fund to be sent to the quartermaster general, and through him to be turned over to the Grant Memorial association to be invested, and the interest applied to the annual care of the cottage and grounds.

Among other recommendations made was one that the committee be continued whose duty it is to see that veterans have preference in government employ. It was also suggested that posts and departments be prohibited from making appeals for funds or for legislation on their own responsibility.

The finances of the order were declared to be in good condition. In concluding General Palmer said:

"As I have shown the trust so unanimously conferred upon me at Detroit I desire to extend to members of my staff my grateful and heartfelt appreciation of the cordial support given me during my term of office. To them I am deeply indebted for that measure of success which marks the administration of the affairs committed to my charge, and I want to extend to all my comrades my heartfelt thanks for the kindness I have received at their hands everywhere. I have had but one object in view—to discharge the duties of the office with all the ability and fidelity God has given me. If I have succeeded in meeting your expectations, and have merited the confidence reposed in me, I shall feel amply rewarded for the year of time and energy I have devoted to your interests; and as I return to the ranks to mingle with you as comrades, in the work that is still before us, it will be my ambition at all times to do my full share in the future progress and prosperity of our grand order."

TERRIBLE ACCIDENT.

No. 8, the Pittsburg Passenger, and a Freight Train,

Going in Opposite Directions as Fast as Steam Can Carry Them,

Collide at Shreve With Terrific Force,

Hurling Eleven Cars into Eternity Without a Moment's Notice,

The Disaster Is Said to be Due to the Freight Crew,

Who Had Orders to Remain at Wooster, But Disobeyed Them,

Fire Breaks Out in the Passenger Coaches,

And Adds to the Horror of the Panic Stricken Crew and Passengers,

A List of the Killed and Injured.

Graphic Description of the Scene of the Wreck as Viewed by a Passenger.

Wrecks are coming thick and fast. Hardly a day passes that there are not called upon to record one or more accidents occurring on some of the roads leading into this city. The readers have not yet recovered from the shock occasioned by the news of the accident at Hobart, in which poor Reuben Chase was so badly injured that for a day or two his life was despaired of, and whose condition is still a matter of grave apprehension. Today we are called upon to chronicle the particulars of a railroad disaster far more destructive to life and property than anything that has yet happened to any of the Fort Wayne railways.

Eleven people were killed and two injured, five passenger cars burned, two engines and five freight cars mutilated in a terrible head end collision at Shreve, Ohio, on the Pittsburg, Fort Wayne and Chicago railway, about 3 o'clock this morning. The colliding trains were section No. 1, freight train No. 75 and express train No. 8, which left this city for the west at 7:45 last evening.

The cause of the accident was the neglect to obey orders on the part of the freight train crew.

Details of the accident are meagre and local officials of the railway company can only give out a general statement. From the latter source it was learned that the limited mail No. 8 was speeding past Shreve with a supposed clear track. The freight had been ordered to lay on a siding at Wooster to allow the express to pass. For some as yet unknown reason the order was disregarded and the freight pulled out and was under full headway when the flash of the heads lights was the first warning received by the engineers, who instantly reversed their engines. This was too late and the huge engines plunged into each other at almost full speed.

The crash was terrible as the trains came together. The engines reared high from the track, while their momentum drove them fairly through each other, and then with the hissing steam and scalding water pouring from every seam and every rivet they fell into the ditch alongside of the track. The freight cars telescoped one another until little but a jumble of wood and iron remained. The panic stricken passengers, bruised and stunned, were thrown from their berths and seats.

With the first crash the lives of the doomed went out. The passenger engineer, fireman, two postal clerks and two passengers from the express and the fireman and front brakeman of the freight train were instantly killed.

The engineer of the freight train jumped from his engine and escaped instant death, but was seriously injured. The postal car caught fire and spread rapidly to the two express cars, baggage car, smoker and first coach. The night was pitch dark, but the horrible spectacle was illuminated with the brilliant glare from the rapidly burning cars.

The accident occurred about two miles from the village of Shreve, in the country folk, trainmen and passengers at once set about the work of rescuing those imprisoned in the wrecked coaches. A messenger was dispatched to Shreve for assistance, and from that point word was sent to the railway officials.

Attention was given to preventing the flames from spreading to the other coaches, and started for Pittsburg, where they arrived at 11 o'clock.

SUPERINTENDENT WATT'S REPORT.

PITTSBURG, Pa., Sept. 21.—The passengers of the wrecked train will not reach Pittsburg until between 2 and 3 o'clock this afternoon. The following official statement and list of the killed and injured is given to the United Press by General Superintendent Watt, of the Pennsylvania company: "About o'clock this morning, September 21, train 8 and 75, first section, collided near Shreve, Ohio, clitching both engines. One postal car, two express cars, on baggage car, one smoker, and one coach were destroyed by fire, and five freight cars were broken up. No. 8 was one hour and a half late, and first and second 75 pulled out on the main track against her.

Those who were killed are:

Chas. Smith, fireman.
W. E. Hammond, fireman.
Geo. B. Mann, postal clerk.
H. S. Allen, postal clerk.
D. E. Reese, postal clerk.
J. T. Patterson, postal clerk.
A. J. Gunn, baggageman.

Two ladies from Eepyville, Penn.

One lady and one child from Alliance, Ohio.

Those who were injured are:

A. Bradly, engineer.
Frank Burke, engineer.
Joseph Ade, postal clerk.
G. Starker, Pittsburg.
D. E. Rhodes, Johnstingtown, Pa.
W. H. Brown, Huntington, Ind.
M. Armstrong, Noblesville, Ind.
J. Ernest, Millville, N. J.
Mr. Lucox. Massillon, Ohio.

Latest Report of the Disaster.

WOOSTER, Ohio, Sept. 21.—The most fearful wreck that has occurred on the Fort Wayne road in years took place one and a half miles west of Shreve at 3 o'clock this morning, when train No. 8, east bound, collided with the first section of west bound freight No 75. The charred remains of twelve persons have already been taken from the wreck and it is believed that there are some others still buried.

Four of the dead were railway postal clerks, two firemen, three ladies and two children and a brakeman. All the bodies thus far taken from the wreck were burned and charred beyond all recognition. Fire broke out almost instantly, burning two mail cars, one smoker, one passenger coach and three freight cars. Half a dozen persons were badly injured, but all were able to proceed to their home. The wreck trains were stopped by the heap of ruins which were red-hot from the terrible fire, and owing to the impossibility of getting water the wreck hands were able to do but little to clear up the debris. Passengers who escaped say the cries of the imprisoned victims were agonizing. The engineers on both trains jumped, one having his legs broken, and the other escaped without injury. Twelve charred and burned bodies have been taken from the wrecked train. Two mail cars, a smoker, an express, one passenger coach and three freight cars were consumed. William H. Brown, of Huntington, Ind., a passenger, slightly injured, was brought to Massillon, Ohio. He said the front part of the cars were thrown upon a bank thirty feet high and the pieces of them fell in a fence on top of the bank. The passenger train was running fifty miles an hour.

HILLSBURY'S REPLY.

He Strikes to His Statements in Regard to the Minnesota Wheat Ring.

ST. PAUL, Minn., Sept. 21.—The attack made upon the alleged Minnesota wheat ring has reached an exciting stage. Chas. A. Pillsbury last night left the office of the St. Paul Globe, in which the attack was printed, making the two propositions: He will put up two certified checks for $5,000 each in the hands of the democratic state committee to be paid if he fails to prove: First, that the letter he wrote Farmer Arnold, at Larimore, N. D., that the losses by the elevators in 1889 were very large, was true. Second—If he fails to prove that the profits of his milling and elevator plants were according to his sworn statements for a period of three years past, or since the organization of the Pillsbury-Washburn Milling company, limited. He offers to have testimony taken at his expense before a commission to be mutually agreed upon between himself and the editor of the Globe. Lewis Baker, editor of the Globe, is in the southern part of the state and what answer he will make is not known.

TROOPS EN ROUTE.

Their Destination Choctaw Nation to Quell Riots.

OKLAHOMA City, Okla., Sept. 21.—Troop "B," 4th cavalry, under command of Capt. Jack Hayes, passed through Oklahoma City yesterday from Fort Reno to the Choctaw nation, where they are sent to quell the political disturbances arising from the recent trial election. Governor Jerome, Judge Wilson and Turner G. Sayore, of the Indian commissions, left Monday for Fort Reno. They proceed to Fort Sill, where they open negotiations with the Comanches and other Indian tribes south of the Wichita reservation relative to the cattle question. Secretary King left yesterday and will proceed to Fort Sill. King is confident that all four of the agreements which the commissioners now have before congress, be ratification of the broken strip, Kickapoo-Wichita tribes, will be ratified before March 5.

ANOTHER HORROR.

Train Robbers Throw a Train Down an Eighty-Foot Embankment.

TOPEKA, Kas., Sept. 21.—A frightful wreck occurred on the Santa Fe railroad a few miles west of Osage City at 3 o'clock this morning. The train was ditched by train robbers and four of the train crew were killed and about twenty-five passengers seriously injured. The train was the Missouri River express, eastbound, and due in this city at 4:15 o'clock this morning. It consisted of a baggage and express car, four coaches and three Pullman sleeping cars. The coaches and sleeping cars were well filled with passengers, nearly all of whom were asleep when the accident occurred.

The train was ditched by obstructions placed on the rails, and rolled down a steep embankment. The day coaches in the forward part of the train were telescoped, and it was in these coaches that most of the injured passengers were located. The following are the killed and injured, so far as can be learned at present:

Killed — Engineer Edward Meyer, Fireman Thomas Chaddicks, both of Topeka, Kas.; Blomenthal, express guard; Frank Baxter, express messenger, Kansas City.

Wounded—C. T. Wardlaw, Elliott, Ills., badly bruised about the body and legs; W. A. Carr, Burlingame, Kas., head cut; A. C. Board, Newton, Kas., slightly cut on arms and hands; Ollie Young, Poplar Bluff, Mo., head badly cut; J. F. Johnson, Indianapolis, badly bruised; H. C. McClure, Richards, Mo., leg broken and head badly cut; P. K. Foster, Lawrence, Kas., badly bruised on head and shoulders; Mrs. Mary Lyman, Bloomington, Ill., head and face badly bruised; Mrs. Means and two small children, Wichita, Kas., slightly bruised; William Down and little child, Chilliecothe, Mo., slightly bruised; L. A. Roberts, Emporia, Kas., spine injured; Thomas Nelson, Topeka, slight cuts on face, head and hands; C. B. Kinne, express messenger, Kansas City, slightly bruised; Postal Clerks J. B. Oberlin and A. F. Waddle, Kansas City, slightly bruised on hips and back; Mrs. W. H. Nelson, Mexico, slightly hurt on back and side.

In the express car there was about $1,000,000, which was being shipped by the Mexican Central Railroad company, through its general offices in Boston. The object of the wreckers was not accomplished, owing to the promptness with which the train was buried by the coaches that were piled upon it in general confusion. So high was the wreckage heaped that it was utterly impossible to find the locomotive, let alone the treasure box. The place selected for the wreck lies between Barclay and Osage City. There is a heavy grade there and frequent curves mark the course of the track. East bound trains pass over this stretch with great speed and the ill-fated night express was making fifty miles an hour when it rounded a curve fifty yards west of the point where the wreckers had removed the bolts from the east end of a rail, swinging it outward toward the embankment, thus switching the train off the main road. Ed Mayer, of this city, was the engineer in charge. Just before reaching the wreckers' improvised switch he noticed that the rail had been misplaced and could see that there was not time to stop the train he threw the throttle open hoping that he might be able to jump the break in safety and avert the calamity. The embankment at this point is about thirty feet high. The engine plunged over it following the course prepared by the would-be robbers. The train was composed of thirteen cars in all, and all except three sleepers were piled on top of the engine. Most of them were overturned and broken into splinters. Fortunately fire did not break out, and it was with no little difficulty that an opening was made in the coaches to permit the passengers to emerge into the semi-darkness of the night. The sight that met the gaze of those who escaped death or injury was terrible.

The engine had gone to the bottom of the hill and on top was piled the wreckage of five cars covering it so completely that it was hidden, from sight, unless one clambered down into the death pit. The confusion alone describes the situation. Engineer Meyer had been thrown from his cab some distance away and had been almost cooked alive by the steam from the busted boiler flues. He was perfectly conscious, although it was apparent that death was near. He said that he saw the rail cut and told briefly of his effort to prevent the derailment of the train. A guard named Blomenthal was sent with the express messenger from Las Vegas. He was killed. As soon as the news was received at the company's offices in this city a relief train was made up and sent out with a number of surgeons and their assistants. The train returned to Topeka at 10:20 o'clock with the wounded and dead and all the passengers. Those who were not seriously injured were sent on their journey by a special train immediately after dinner. The dead were placed in caskets before removal from the train and the wounded were taken to hospitals. The foul hands of Barclay, three miles west of the scene of the accident, was broken open last night and a number of tools removed. Several empty whisky bottles were found in a pool of water near the scene of the wreck. Several passengers say that they saw a number of men run for the brush near by immediately after the disaster. Two freight trains pulled into Osage City only ten minutes before the passenger was due, so it is known that the work of the miscreants was done immediately before the arrival of the train. Officers are now scouring the country in search of the wreckers.

ANOTHER GAD WRECK.

LANCASTER, Pa., Sept. 21.—The second section of the Philadelphia express, eastward bound, ran into the second section of the Pacific express, westward bound, on the Pennsylvania railroad at Rheem's station, fifteen miles west of here, about 3 o'clock this morning. Both trains were badly wrecked. One engineer was killed outright and the other and the firemen of both trains fatally injured. None of the passengers were hurt. The cause is attributed to disregard of orders on the part of one of the engineers. The tracks were badly blocked.

SAFELY HOME.

Mrs. Harrison Arrives at the White House—She Stood the Journey Nicely.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 21.—The special train bearing the president, Mrs. Harrison and party arrived at the Pennsylvania depot at 8:45 this morning, about fifteen minutes late. The trip from Albany was devoid of incident. The party reached Jersey City about 3 a. m., forty minutes late. The arrangements along the route, under Geo. W. Boyd, assistant general passenger agent of the Pennsylvania railroad, were perfect, and everything was done for Mrs. Harrison's comfort. All whistles and noises along the railroad were stopped and the depots were kept quiet. The president occupied a berth in the car near Mrs. Harrison and lay down at intervals. At Washington the party was met by Postmaster-General Wanamaker, Colonel Ernest, United States army, and De Bannister, army surgeon, with a corps from the Washington barracks and an ambulance which was driven to the end of the car sheds, to avoid a crowd about the depot, where about 5,000 people assembled to await the arrival of the presidential party. Mrs. Harrison was taken from the rear car and placed on an army litter and carried to the ambulance. The president and Dr. Gardner rode in the ambulance with Mrs. Harrison and Dr. Bannister took a seat on the outside of the ambulance. Four mounted police cleared the streets for the party, which moved from the depot to "F" street to avoid the crowd. Thence they were driven to the main entrance of the white house. An invalid lunch took place there that showed the affection which Mrs. Harrison holds for those about her household. A number of clerks watched her removal from the ambulance from the office windows. Glancing up from her couch Mrs. Harrison saw the eager faces of the sympathetic employes and smilingly waved her hand in greeting to them. She was taken from the ambulance and carried to her apartments on the second floor, accompanied by the president and Dr. Gardner, where she at once found herself among all the comforts of home. Dr. Gardner, in speaking of the trip, said that Mrs. Harrison stood the journey very nicely, in fact, much better than she had anticipated, and as the train brought her to Washington she became more buoyant in spirit. She slept most of the journey from Albany and is resting comfortably this morning and seems delighted to be again in Washington.

THEIR DEMANDS REFUSED.

And Chief Ramsay Will Order the Telegraphers to Strike.

CEDAR RAPIDS, Ia., Sept. 21.—The grievance committee of telegraphers of the Burlington, Cedar Rapids and Northern railway presented their ultimatum to the officials of that road yesterday afternoon. Their demands were promptly refused, and in all probability Grand Chief Ramsay, of the Order of Railway Telegraphers, will call the 200 operators employed by the company out on a strike. The schedule presented by the committee places the minimum salary for operators at $45 a month. Should a strike be declared it will probably extend to all the railroad organizations.

LATER.

CEDAR RAPIDS, Ia., Sept. 21.—The telegraph operators on the Burlington, Cedar Rapids and Northern railroad were ordered this morning to strike by the Order of Railway Telegraphers. The men were to go out at noon. Operators on all branch lines were notified.

COWARD MITCHELL.

Again Makes a Bluff for the Prize Ring Championship.

NEW YORK, Sept. 21.—The officials of the Coney Island Athletic club are trying to arrange a match between Corbett and Jackson, but the former still adheres to his determination not to engage in any more fights for a year. Mitchell, however, still hankers after a meeting with the champion, as will be seen from the following cable dispatch from London received yesterday: "Charley Mitchell has deposited a forfeit of $2,500 and renewed his challenge to fight Corbett for $10,000 a side, the championship of the world and the purse of $20,000 offered by the Olympic club. He wants to fight in February. Mitchell says Corbett must fight him within the next six months or forfeit the championship."

Dr. S. C. Metcalf has received an invitation and complimentary ticket to the world's fair from the Hon. C. A. O. McClellan.

MICHAEL—ECKART.

Their Celebrated Slander Suit on Trial at Columbia City—Court News.

The celebrated slander suit of Michael against Eckert has at last come to a trial.

It is being heard today at Columbia City before a judge and jury in the circuit court of Whitley and Kosciusko counties, having been taken there by change of venue from this county.

The people of this city will readily recall the charges made by the plaintiff, Councilman Herman Michaels, who says in his petition that the defendant, Frederick Eckert, accused him of having acted improperly in the way of discharging his duties as councilman.

The amount claimed by the petitioner is $10,000.

Henry Colerick, J. M. Barrett, of this city, and Marshall & McNagny, of Columbia City, are the attorneys for the plaintiff. Judge Robert Lowry, Barry Hanna and the Leonard brothers are the attorneys for the defendant.

The case excites a great deal of local interest, as both the parties are prominent here.

COURT CULLINGS.

Chas. Lahmeyer and Minnie Spiegel, Henry Stemler and Wilhelmina Hohmeyer have been licensed to wed.

Chas. Weeks was arraigned in the circuit court, and pleading guilty, was sent to the penitentiary for two years. He burglarized the Rich hotel.

Frank Mayer was sentenced by Judge O'Rourke to thirty days in jail for stealing cigars.

Margaret Poulson commences suit in the circuit court against John Poulson for divorce. She alleges cruelty. The parties were married in March, 1885. George W. Loutitt is a torney for the plaintiff.

The coroner has returned a verdict that John Poinsett, whose death was recorded in THE SENTINEL, was killed by accident.

The Pressler case is being heard by Justice Franke.

Justice Hays has postponed the Casper Hill case.

Justice Ryan, acting as mayor, sent Ed. Rielly and Nicholas Gassert to jail for drunkenness.

Henry Walters, who is charged with stealing a horse, will have a hearing tomorrow in the circuit court.

The people of Zanesville have requested that the county commissioners refuse to grant a liquor license to Weaver, the saloon keeper at that place.

August Trader, of Erie street, who was accused of abusing his family while intoxicated, was fined $3 and costs last evening by Justice Wilkinson and sent to jail.

Judge Lowry appeared for the defense today at Columbia City, in the slander suit of Herman Michael against Fred Eckert, both of Fort Wayne.

James Wolf, agent for the property of his brother, Patrick Wolf, at the corner of Harrison and Melita streets, was fined $25.65 by Justice Hays last evening for maintaining a nuisance in the shape of an out-house vault. The owner of the property, Patrick Wolf, is an overseer in the penitentiary at Michigan City. Health Officer Metcalf says that persons who have received notice and do not comply with the order will be vigorously prosecuted to the full extent of the law.

The following building permits have been issued: Brooks Brothers, a brick and stone church for Plymouth Congregational society, on lot 111 Hanna's addition, $16,000. The church will stand on the southeast corner of Harrison and Jefferson streets; O. Groves, a two-story frame house on the west one-half of lot 11, Laselle's addition, $900. This house will stand on the south side of Laselle street between Warsaw and Lafayette streets.

Alice M. Brown has qualified as administratrix of the estate of Thomas M. Brown.

Mathias Holloper has qualified as administrator of the estate of the late Alfred A. Carrel.

Nancy J. Burns sues for a divorce from Arthur Burns. The complaint is by J. R. Bittinger, and alleges assault and battery and cruel and inhuman treatment and language. It is said that the husband tried to chloroform his wife some nights ago, and did apply the drug to her nose while she slept.

Mart Batson, of Bluffton, whose wife has applied for a divorce, called upon the lady and demanded that she withdraw the suit. She refused, and he then attempted to cut his throat, but only succeeded in inflicting one of not serious depth. Mr. Batson has been removed to a bichloride of gold institute for treatment.

Dr. Louis Eberhardt was convicted on his first trial of criminally assaulting Lettie Mohler, of Clinton county, whom he was treating for epilepsy, and was sentenced for five years. He secured a new trial, and Monday, at Frankfort, a jury dosed him for nine years.

Lillie Lothetter, of Mt. Vernon, has been arrested, charged with setting fire to George Watkins' barn two years ago, by which six valuable draught horses were roasted to death. The accused denies the charge, and says that her arrest is due to the false statement of a jealous woman.

George Stull, of the people's party, has sold the Logansport Advance, which he recently established, and 'tis said is preparing to leave Logansport. Recently he married Miss Belle Mohler, of Muncie, and the Muncie papers reiterate the charge that he has two wives living and several children. Stull continues to threaten libel proceedings against the papers who have maligned him.

A BAND OF THIEVES.

The Suffering Cattlemen Organize, Attack Them and Hang the Leader.

FARGO, N. D., Sept. 21.—A band of thieves has established headquarters in Emmons county, in the western part of the state, and for months past have conducted a business of running off cattle and horses from surrounding ranches. The leader of the band is the notorious "Judge" Short, and his headquarters are in a strong castle on the summit of a rocky hill in the western part of the county. Word has been received here that the ranchmen raided the castle and a sharp battle ensued in which several were killed and injured, and "Judge" Short, after being wounded, was captured and lynched. The report has not been confirmed.

ORATORICAL CONTEST.

Miss Alice Drummond Carries off the Prize.

An interesting temperance convention, under the auspices of the Good Templars, is in progress at the Baptist church. Last evening the attendance was unusually large, the attraction being an oratorical contest between lady elocutionists, the prize being a gold medal given by the publishers of Demorest's Magazine. The contestants were the Misses Josie Spaulding and Rose Hickman, of this city; Misses Alice Drummond and Clara Lucas, of Huntington. The judges were Rev. S. A. Northrop, Rev. J. S. Ainslie and O. E. Robinson, and the points to be considered were voice, articulation, memory, gestures and general effect. Miss Drummond was awarded the prize. The young lady is possessed of remarkable oratorical talent, has a fine voice and pleasing address and appearance. She is the sister of Charley Drummond, the reporter, and Harry E., the printer, of this city, and is a frequent visitor here. Mrs. H. B. Gorsline, past chief Templar; Mrs. Sawtelle, B. W. Hurlburt, Rev. J. S. Ainslie and Rev. S. A. Northrop each addressed the meeting on appropriate subjects. The latter stated that intemperance was killing more people at present than the cholera.

The convention is still in session.

SAWBONES FIGHT.

Two Settle a Personal Quarrel They Recently Had in the Operating Room.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Sept. 21.—A lively fist fight occurred in the main corridor of the Lindell hotel last night, between Isaac N. Love, editor of the St. Louis Medical Weekly, and Dr. Frank A. Glasgow, both prominent physicians of this city. Dr. Love was slapped in the face for an insulting remark which he is said to have made to Dr. Glasgow, a few days ago in the latter's office. The trouble grew out of an accusation made by Dr. Love that Dr. Glasgow had resorted to questionable and unprofessional methods regarding the admission of new members to the national society, which is now in session here.

CHOLERA ABATING.

No New Cases Reported in Quarantine at Mobile City.

NEW YORK, Sept. 21.—The official bulletin of the health board report this morning that no cases of cholera have been discovered in this city since the last report.

LONDON, Sept. 21.—Examination in regard to a woman said to have died at Falkirk with choleric symptoms, has resulted in showing that the cause of death was hemorrhage.

The fireman who was seized with cholera while the steamer Uranus, from Hamburg, was being unloaded at Hull on Monday, is dead.

TOPEKA, Kan., Sept. 21.—There is serious and general alarm felt here over the prevalence of cholerine although no cases have proved fatal.

The health officers have been increased and the city is being thoroughly cleaned.

BOWLES SEEKS REVENGE.

Failing to Convict a Man in Court, He Uses a Pistol.

FORT WORTH, Texas, Sept. 21.—Chas. Vincent, an Englishman, was tried yesterday and acquitted of the charge of having attempted to murder Ollie Bowles about three months ago, when Bowles was shot in an unaccountable manner. At the conclusion of the trial Vincent left the court house, and soon afterwards was seen by Bowles. Bowles quickly jumped from a buggy in which he was riding and fired two shots at Vincent, who fled. Jim Rankin, a young man, was shot through the body, one shot going through his heart, killing him instantly. A few merchant received a shot through the leg. Bowles was sent to prison.

PROBABLY FALSE

Is the Rumor That Mr. Jackson Was in the Burning Wreck.

The names of the Pittsburg wreck caused considerable excitement in this city and rumors of the death or injury of several Fort Wayne people were in circulation. It was rumored on the streets that Mr. Jackson, an express messenger, of Chicago, formerly a driver of an Adams wagon in this city, was among the killed. No such name appears in the list furnished the United Press Association by General Superintendent Watt, of the Pennsylvania company, and the rumor is probably false. A list of the mail agents who were killed or injured was referred to the postal officials here, and they state that none of the unfortunate clerks are residents of this city.

YOU DON'T KNOW

what a comfort it is to have ready at hand a remedy that never fails to relieve Constipation, and that, without pain or discomfort; and almost immediately cures headaches, and dispels every symptom of Dyspepsia. Such a remedy is found in Simmons Liver Regulator—not a sweetened compound to nauseate, or an intoxicating beverage to cultivate an alcoholic appetite, but a medicine pleasant to the taste, and perfectly harmless when given to the smallest child. S. L. R. never disappoints. It possesses the virtues and perfections of a reliable remedy of the kind endorsed by eminent physicians.

"It affords me pleasure to add my testimony to those you receive annually in reference to your valuable medicine. I consider Simmons Liver Regulator the best family medicine in the market. I have prescribed it with unvarying success."—W. F. Park, M. D., Tracy City, Tenn.

THE postmasters of Allen county will hereafter meet once a month. This order will be in effect until after the election.

THE survivors of the Twenty-third Indiana battery will hold their sixth annual meeting in Fort Wayne, Tuesday, October 6.

GOV. FLOWER, of New York, is credited with having said: "I don't care for votes, but I am going to put down lawbreakers and put the state in possession of its property."

SENATOR TURPIE has no fears of the movement to overthrow the legislative apportionment acts in this state. He shows that a final decision cannot possibly be reached before the election, and that inasmuch as Secretary of State Claude Matthews and State Auditor Henderson have by law to preside at the opening of the legislature, the democrats have but little to fear when matters come to the crucial test.

CHINESE residents throughout the country are refusing to obey the law which requires them to be registered and photographed. It is said they are acting under the instructions of the "Chinese Six Companies," a powerful organization in San Francisco, whose commands are gospel to the Chinamen. This new law may be unjust, but, right or wrong, it should be obeyed. Any organization which counsels defiance of the laws of the country should be made to feel the force of these laws without delay.

THE SENTINEL has received an invitation to attend the third quadrennial barbecue and democratic mass meeting, to be held at Peru, Indiana, Wednesday, Oct. 12, 1892. It is confidently expected that this will be the largest political meeting of the campaign in this state, and more numerously attended than the monster demonstrations held in 1884 and 1888. Gen. A. E. Stevenson, democratic candidate for vice president, and other statesmen and orators of national reputation will be present to address the multitudes.

INTEREST is felt in the course of the German government at the approaching session of its parliament. Prince Bismarck, who has not yet taken his seat in the reichstag, it is believed will do so this fall. The army bill will be the prominent measure for settlement. If Chancellor Caprivi fails to secure its passage he can scarcely avoid resigning his office. It order to pass the measure a combination of the ultramontanes and the extreme conservatives will be necessary. The bill proposes to reduce the conscript service from three years to two. This will make it necessary to call out a larger number of conscripts each year, and, of course, to increase the cost of the standing army. It is proposed to add $20,000,000 to the regular appropriation of $100,000,000. It is believed that in order to obtain this Caprivi will have to grant fresh concessions to the ultramontanes, which will be vehemently opposed by the Protestants, as it will mean the revival of the educational bill. This possibly may be Bismarck's opportunity.

Mistaken Ideals.

The ideal woman of every man is the "womanly woman." The ideal man of every woman is the "manly man." And the expression "a womanly woman" means pretty much the same to every man who uses it, just as the "manly man" of one woman expresses a certain combination of qualities well known to every other woman. The man's "womanly woman" is gentle, amiable, quiet and domestic, not a worry in Hamlet Hazar. She loves to sit upon a low chair and hem things, with the lamplight falling over her hair. It is unnecessary to say that although in theory this is the sort of woman a man prefers, in practice he may choose one entirely her opposite. She does not exist in large quantities, which is lucky, as she might prove decidedly insipid if she did. The woman's "manly man" means a man strong, brave and daring. He must perform easily bold deeds which she dare not attempt. She likes that—in dreams. In actual life she may find that a man neither daring nor bold has satisfactory and endearing qualities which make him more after her own heart than the ideal of her dreams could ever be. We are not all alike, thank Heaven! but various. And the spark of originality which is implanted in each of us all is the thing to cherish and develop, and not distort ourselves into ideal forms.

A DAUGHTER of Sitting Bull, the great Sioux war chief, was married a few days ago to an ex-soldier of the United States army. The bridegroom, it is said, served with Custer for a long time, and testified once saved his life when he was attacked by her father's braves. As this is the only romance connected with the chief and his otherwise uninteresting family we call attention to it, because it enables some modern Cooper to write a charming novel. In these days of realism a genuine old-fashioned love story, with aboriginal attachments, would be hailed with delight by scores of low-neck unshirt wearing humanitarians who believe in reforming everybody and everything.

REFERENCE has been made to the crowded condition of New York City, where there is an average of nearly nine persons to every dwelling. Further investigation shows that over 42 per cent of all the houses are tenements. Out of 312,705 families only 37,601 live in houses by themselves, leaving 275,103 families living under the same roof with other people. There are 8,703 dwellings which contain over ten families each. Rents are very high, apartments in a flat renting for more than a whole house in other cities, and the purchase of a home, even on the installment plan, offers grave objections. New York has been called the "landlord's paradise."

AN eccentric and wealthy old farmer who died in Drakesville, Ia., the other day had requested that he should not be buried in an ordinary coffin but in one made in the shape of a chair. A cabinetmaker constructed the curious casket, which was kept on exhibition in his room several weeks before he died. It was built of white oak, with walnut trimmings, and a glass panel in front that opened like a door. The body was placed in the chair in a sitting posture, the wrists were strapped to the arms of the chair and the legs fastened to the rungs.

A FARMER drove into Edgefield, S. C., and tried to sell cabbage at two heads for five cents to the colored people, but as the price was not on all sides with the crop. Then, we don't get aghmest to bib down wid de cabbage." After receiving that excuse a dozen times the farmer stopped at a grocer's, bought a small quantity of bacon, cut it into slices, put it also on exhibition, and also and offered a head with a slice of bacon for five cents. Then he sold all his cabbages and drove out of town amid the blessings of the community.

AN insurance order known as Iron Hall has been placed in the hands of a receiver. The receiver promised something for nothing, counting upon the national craze for making money without working for it, and built up a membership of over one hundred thousand. Life and indemnity insurance is a delectable business, which must be conducted upon recognized principles. Whenever an organization promises to return more than it receives it may safely be viewed with suspicion.

A HORSE in Circleville, O., has a very decided dislike for bicycles. While a young lady was riding along the road to other day the horse tried to run her down, and to save herself from being crushed under his feet she abandoned the machine. The horse attacked the bicycle and was pawing it to pieces when some farmers arrived and drove him away.

THE United States census shows that the five chief cities of the state of New York, namely: New York, Brooklyn, Albany, Troy, Buffalo, contained, in the month of June, 1890, only sixty thousand less than one-half the population of the state, and only fifty thousand less than the male population of the state.

A MAN at Macon, Ga., has a tendollar note of the state of North Carolina, printed in 1778. On one side is the inscription: "Persecution the Ruin of Empires," while on the other side appears the words: "Death to Counterfeiters."

THE KIND I LIKE.

I know some people well to do,
They're comforts by the score,
Their home seems a peaceful view
Through sweet contentment's door.
Yet the same people spend their struggles
Though they might take their ease—
In proving that throughout its length
Life ever fails to please.

I know another class full well,
They walk life's common way,
Within a chosen home they dwell
And have more work than play.
But somehow, though they have enough,
Not well their lot agrees,
Though trouble never has shown rebuff
Life ever fails to please.

Still others in the lower walk,
Their story have revealed,
Of poverty and cold and chalk,
And sorrow ill concealed.
No wonder these poor people think,
As winter comes to freeze,
There's but one sentiment to drink
"Life ever fails to please."

But there's another kind of folks,
They're sometimes rich or poor;
They find this life chock full of jokes,
Small troubles they endure.
They're just the kind I love to meet,
Life's better part they know;
They find existence truly sweet;
It never, never fails to please!

Yes, give me friends with laughing tears,
They scatter clouds of grief,
There's much in smiling countenances,
Their smiles bring glad relief.
The cynic and the pessimist
May glow o'er misery's page,
But put me on the laughing list,
Where life is bound to please!

ONE GIRL'S SUMMER.

A Sacrifice That Brought Its Own Great Reward.

They made an attractive group as they sat in the station waiting for the south-bound train. There was Mrs. Ashley, a plump, smiling matron of forty-five, whose mature charms lost nothing when contrasted with the youthful prettiness of her three slender, stylish daughters.

There was Rob, who had just reached the age when, from being supremely indifferent as to the color of his gloves and the fit of his coat, he had grown to regard these questions as of paramount importance. And lastly, there was Eddie, the bookworm, who just now was flattening his nose against the window, eager to obtain a view of the train which was to carry them away from the city's dust and heat.

Mr. Arnold, who had been looking after the baggage, came into the room and glanced about him with the peculiar helplessness of the head of so many American households, of being scarcely acquainted with his own family. Even the life of a successful business man is by no means a bed of roses. When Mr. Arnold's children were younger they had been very fond of their father, and were fond of him now, indeed, but with the claims that society put upon them it was seldom they found time to show their feeling.

"Can't you come down to Cliffside next week from Sunday?" Mrs. Arnold asked, as her husband dropped into a seat beside her.

Mr. Arnold shook his head. "I guess not. It's so late Monday before I get back to the city. Perhaps next month I can run down for a day."

He ran his fingers wearily through his gray hair, and his oldest daughter, Helen, noticed an unusual shadow on the tired face. There was a little pang of tenderness that ran through her at the time to wonder at its meaning a shrill whistle sounded.

Eddie jumped to his feet, exclaiming: "Locomotive! She's a tunnin'!" And in the confusion of hasty good-bys all else was forgotten.

Cliffside is charming during the summer months. From the sandy beach the cliffs, which give the place its name, rise tall and majestic toward the sky. Before one stretches the shimmering sea; behind one the fields slope up to the edge of the forest. There is a fresh breeze at Cliffside on the hottest day. "In fact, there's always a sort to compare with it," said Mrs. Arnold that evening as they sat on the broad piazza, and the rest of the family enthusiastically agreed with her.

That night Helen woke her sister with an impatient exclamation: "Grace Ashley! I've forgotten to select the frame for that water color Annie Mattle wrote about."

"Send Rob back to the city," Grace suggested, sleepily. "Or else write about it."

"Send a boy!" repeated Helen, with an air of contempt. "As! I'm not going to write when I can help it. It's a matter to my taste. No! I'll go to the city myself to-morrow afternoon, stay over night at home, and then come back in the morning."

And so, unexpectedly, the next afternoon Helen Arnold found herself at home. She had written to her mother that she could not help noticing how gloomy the house looked with its closed shutters. "But as if it had gone to sleep for the summer," Helen reflected as she touched the bell.

The servant, who answered her ring looked at her in astonishment. "Why, Miss Helen! Back again?"

"Only for to-night," answered Helen briskly. She looked about the hall and dining-room door opened into the parlor. "Dear me!" she exclaimed, "how dismal!"

That was what Mrs. Arnold ordered, Miss Helen," explained the girl, anxiously. "She said to close the shutters and cover the furniture and—"

"O, it's all right, Jane," Helen hastened to assure her, "only it looks rather gloomy." And then as she went upstairs she said, under her breath: "I wish summer alone in this dreadful house! Poor papa!"

She came down to the dining-room at half-past seven, after a hasty bath and toilet. "Don't tell my father I've come, Annie," she said; "I want to surprise him." She slipped into the deep recess of the window seat and drawing the heavy draperies about her waited for the well-known step.

It sounded in the hall at last, weary and dispirited, Mr. Arnold's face, as he entered the dining-room, wore the unexpectant expression of a man who anticipates breakfasting and dining alone for the cheerless weeks. He hardly tasted the soup the girl brought him, but sat with knitted brows, evidently revolving some business perplexity, till Helen, slipping from her hiding place, stole up behind him and softly kissed his cheek. "Good evening," she said, brightly.

Mr. Arnold started up. "Helen!" he exclaimed, in bewilderment, "how did you come here?"

Helen laughingly explained. "And now," she went on, slipping into the seat opposite him, "I shall expect you to say you're glad to see me." And as she smiled at him across the table she made up her mind that for that evening she would be as entertaining as she knew how.

Before the meal was over Helen Arnold had made an interesting discovery, namely, that her father could be entertaining, too. Moreover, there was a certain agreeable novelty about being tete-a-tete with one's own father, which Helen could hardly recollect when she had enjoyed an hour so much. When they arose from the table Mr. Arnold glanced tenderly at his daughter. "If you are not too tired, Helen," he said, "I wonder if I couldn't have some music."

"Indeed you'd may," answered Helen, trying to speak lightly, though the unconscious appeal in his voice had touched her inexplicably. She went at once to the piano and almost instinctively began to play the simple melodies which harmonized best with the gathering twilight, the hush of the room and her own softened thoughts. And her father, sitting in the deepening shadows, now and then put his hand to his eyes as if to wash away an unbidden tear.

When the long evening was over and Helen went to her father's room to bid him good night, he put his arms about her and held her fast. "This has been like old times, Helen," he said. "I had expected such a lonely evening and this was such a pleasant surprise. I shall think of it very often when I'm here alone. Thank you, my dear. Good night."

Helen kissed him in silence, not trusting herself to make a reply. But as she went upstairs, struggling to keep back the tears, she whispered softly: "My poor, lonely father! I'll try after this to be a better daughter."

"You want to spend the summer at home!" said Mrs. Arnold the next afternoon. She sat in her room at the hoosier cabinet, and was talking to her daughter with a gaze in which consternation and bewilderment were blended. "Helen, you must be crazy. Consider your health."

Helen gazed at the reflection of her blooming face in the mirror opposite and smiled a little. It hardly seemed necessary to answer that question.

"Stay in the city all summer," chimed in Grace. "Why, Helen, nobody does that."

"Papa does," answered Helen, quietly.

"You couldn't stand it, Helen," said Laura, the youngest girl, positively. "You'd die of loneliness."

"But papa stays there without any of us," persisted Helen.

Grace flushed indignantly. "How absurd you are, Helen. Of course papa does. He always has. It's very different with a man."

But Helen's mind was made up. Unmoved by remonstrances or ridicule, she packed her trunks and went back to the city, not, it must be confessed, without a pang at leaving the cool attractiveness of Cliffside. When fer father came home that evening he found her in her pretty tea-gown, with her hair dressed in the most becoming way, waiting to receive him. It was some time before he could be made to understand the change in her plans, but when he at last comprehended her explanation he grew quite pale.

"Give up your summer's pleasure, Helen?" he said. "Indeed, I'm not selfish enough to allow anything of the kind. You must go back to-morrow. Not even Eddie shall be left desolate. Not that the way of self-denial was unexpectedly easy. She had many days of loneliness, many weary hours; every letter she received from Cliffside made the course she had marked out for herself seem more difficult and unattractive. But the new revelation between her father and herself, his grateful tenderness, the change in his face and step, his altered bearing, surely these were very exceptional compense for a far greater sacrifice. And, moreover, during the enforced quiet of those long months Helen was making certain surprising discoveries. Among the many "nobodies" who had not left the city for the summer Helen was finding more than one familiar face. Miss Mattle, charming people, whose names she had hitherto barely found time to remember half a dozen times throughout the day, began to interest her. She felt the inspiration of these earnest lives, Helen wondered not a little at her previous blindness.

It was perhaps through the infusion of these new friends that she found many new and unexpected opportunities for helpfulness. Her mother seemed to have broadened out, in sympathies had widened. One boy out of a hundred had opened her eyes to the distresses of all the outside world and had brought her into touch with all the loving, sacrificing hairs of humanity.

When Mrs. Arnold came home in September she scanned her dear daughter with some anxiety. "Even Mattie Mattle forgotten!" she said to Grace. "Docan't she seem changed"

"I think she looks well," Grace answered, doubtfully. "But she certainly seems different in some way."

Helen, overhearing this conversion, smiled a little, for who appreciat the difference?" so fully as one who has been blind, now sees? Not a soul which has wandered long in the ways of selfishness but comes at last into love's glad sunlight. And Helen Arnold, summer, with its crosses and its sadness, with its inspirations and its blessings, Helen Arnold from her heart asked God.—Hattie Lummis, in Congregationalist.

VANDERBILT'S BIG CHECK.

A Saratoga Man Gives a Reminiscence of Over Twenty Years Ago

"Twelve hundred and fifty thousand dollars," said William Hayes, of Saratoga, the other day, does not seem to be a very large sount of money nowadays, but at it time—back in 1869, when I was clerk at the Congress hall—it looked lafy.

"Commodore Vanderbilt one to me one day and wrote me out a check, one that could be fid out for any bank. I produced on when he said: 'Gage, you write a retty good hand; please fill out for e.' I told me to date it. I think, the lays ahead. James H. Brolin, who at ie time was room clerk at the Congres stood near when the commodore wasleating the check.

"When I asked how uch I should write in the check, the comodore gave me the name of the bik and then quickly said: 'Twelve undred and fifty thousand dollars.' t the time I wrote these words I did realize that the amount was so larg but when I started to put the same figures on the lower left hand corner. I came to the conclusion that I mst be mistaken, and asked the commore about it. His simple answer was 'One million two hundred and fifty thousand dollars all.' After I read the check over to him he took my pen, e hurriedly affixed his signature to te check, which he crumpled up and p in his trousers' pocket as if it was bt of any mor value than a dollar no. The fact tha the commodore had ean his check for that amount soon ot noised among the brokers stopping here, and ther was a flurry of excitment for sor little time, but in a fe days the fa was published that h had purchased plot of land for railroad purposes f twelve hundred and fity thousand dlars."—Toledo Blade.

What Stumped.

"Septha," asked Mrs. Jones, who's toying late in life b improve her mi, "what is a wedge?"

"Wat?" said Mr. ones, fiercely. e hates to be interrupted when he's ri ing.

"A nice answer hat is to make to yur wife when she asks you a civil questin. You think you're smart," said Mrs. Jones, white with wrath.

Mr. Jones laughd, then he explaid, and a peace was patched up.—Detoit Free Press.

"—Keep quiet, my friend, and don't kick," said the highwayman to those around. "Remember that contentment is better than riches."

Joe White, of the Pittsburg blacksmith shop, is absent today on account of an injured hand.

Charles Seymour, Jacob Goegline and H. J. Remmers have accepted positions at the electric works.

Judd Tyler has resigned his position at the electric works to accept a position in the post office.

Brakeman C. B. Townsend, of the Nickel Plate, after a pleasant vacation, has reported for work.

Jacob Metzinger, of the electric works, moved into his new house on Home avenue yesterday.

George H. Judy, foreman of the Pittsburg blacksmith shop, went on a business trip to Lima today.

Johnnie Doyle, of the electric works, has taken a position in the blacksmith shop under Foreman Connett.

J. M. Bassett and W. P. Smith, of the Standard wheel works, went to Fremont, Ind., this morning, on business.

R. Hartendorf, of the Pittsburg blacksmith shop, reported for duty this morning after a short absence visiting friends.

Charles Waygood has resigned his position at the electric works and Harry Smith has been appointed to succeed him.

Conductor Harber, of the Nickel Plate, who has been very sick, is reading easily and hopes for his recovery are entertained.

Rush Wolford, of the Pittsburg blacksmith shop, will leave for Wabash, Ind., this evening to attend the county fair at that place.

C. Kremmel, cab builder at the Pittsburg shops, returned to work this morning after a six months' absence caused by an injury.

George Kikley, fireman on the Nickel Plate, has returned from Crown Point, where he was in attendance at a law suit against the road.

Engine No. 114, the one in the wreck at Hobart, was brought in last night. It is badly torn up and looks as if it had been in a cyclone.

George Brown, of the Foster furniture works, will leave tomorrow for an extended trip in the west. He expects to go as far as the Pacific coast.

Fred Markey, of the Nickel Plate, who has been confined to his home with a sprained foot, is able to be out and expects to report shortly.

The Wabash road will furnish a special car for them of our citizens who will go to Logansport October 3, on the occasion of the Baptist convention.

Mrs. Al Hawkey, wife of the Nickel Plate engineer, has returned to her home in Bellevue, after a visit with Mrs. Mayer, of West Wayne street.

D. Doyle, the popular Pittsburg conductor, wears an unusually pleasant smile this week. It is a sweet faced baby girl and Dudley sings sweet lullabys.

Engineer George P. Cooper, of the Nickel Plate, is back from Crown Point, where he was a witness for the company in the law suit that has been spoken of before.

John Henry, Frank Forbing and Tom McNoarney, riveters at the Pittsburg shops, are laid off on account of a slack of work. McNearney expects to spend the remainder of this week hunting and fishing.

M. J. Pitts, the city ticket agent, received an official notice yesterday stating that tickets would now be sold for the new trains on the Nickel Plate, which will leave this city for the west at 2:30 a. m. and for the east at 3:30 a. m.

George Strasser has resigned his position in the Bass machine shop and left for the west.

The employes of the Pittsburg tin shop now work thirteen hours per day, five days in the week.

Charles Waltmann and H. D. Hart, of the Pittsburg boiler shop, have been transferred to the tin shop.

Julius Lehman, of the Bass wheel works, is absent today. William Robinson is working in his place.

Ex-Councilman G. P. Gor don, baggagemaster at the south depot, went to Columbia City this morning on business.

L. Gribbiner, fireman on the Grand Rapids, reported for duty this morning after being absent a few days attending to private business.

Fireman J. A. Jackson and Engineer J. G. Carman, of the Pittsburg, reported for duty this morning after absence on account of illness.

William Bande, the genial clerk of the Pittsburg blacksmith shop, seems to be a great favorite among shopmen for the nomination for city clerk.

Emile Ritchey, of the Bass shops, will lay off tomorrow to attend the wedding of Will Holsner and Anna Kamrath, on West Washington street.

The Nickel Plate has again created consternation in passenger circles. Yesterday the company announced an $8.50 rate from Chicago to Buffalo and $12.50 from Chicago to New York. Other lines will have to meet the rate or lose business.

Conductor Charles Lonergan, of the Lake Erie and Western passenger service, is critically ill at 91 Madison street. He is suffering with typhoid fever and is delirious. His family would be pleased to have some of the railway men call.

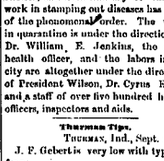
S. C. Henderson, foreman of the Pittsburg tin shop, finished his thirty-third year in the employ of the company yesterday. No demonstration was made to celebrate the completion of this long term of service except a few hand shakes from some of the men.

Joe Carry, one of the oldest employes of the Pittsburg shops, will leave for Alliance, Ohio, next Friday to visit his old home, which he has not seen for fifteen years. Mr. Carry is an old timer in railroad affairs and helped lay the Pittsburg track when it was built through here. He has been with the Pittsburg company ever since.

Yesterday F. P. Sargent was re-elected grand master of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen at the convention now in session in Cincinnati; F. W. Arnold, of Chicago, was elected grand secretary and treasurer, and E. V. Debs was continued as editor of the Locomotive Fireman's Magazine. W. F. Hines, of Denver; C. W. Mayer, of Parsons, Kan., and A. H. Sutton, of Decatur, Ill., were elected as members of the board of grand trustees for the ensuing year.

TWO HEALTH OFFICERS.

President Charles G. Wilson and Dr. Cyrus Edson, of New York.



The eyes of the nation are now centered on the work of the New York board of health, and the labors of that body are in charge of Charles G. Wilson and Dr. Cyrus Edson. The former is not a physician, but thoroughly acquainted with methods of sanitation. Dr. Cyrus Edson is the son of ex-Mayor Edson, of New York, and one of the most famous physicians in the country. The board of health, of which he is the medical head, was organized in 1866, at the time of the last visitation of the cholera, and from that day to this its work in stamping out diseases has been of the phenomenal order. The work in quarantine is under the direction of Dr. William, E. Jenkins, the state health officer, and the labors in the city are altogether under the direction of President Wilson, Dr. Cyrus Edson and a staff of over five hundred health officers, inspectors and aids.

CUSTOM OF CHINESE.

A TRAVELER WRITES ENTERTAININLY OF THEM.

American Nonsense Rife in Japan and China—North and South China Dying by Proxy—Sanitation Going Down Before the Scythe of Commerce.

[Special Correspondence.]

SHANGHAI, Sept. 5.—I have now been in China and Japan upwards of two months. The cheapness of travel here is one of the features of China and Japan. Gold in traveling is a joke. Cheap? Everything I brought from America in silver, paper or gold is worth $7.55 in Mexican dollars or Japan yens. A yen is a Japanese dollar the size of our dollar, and containing 100 cents. So a thousand American dollars means nearly $1,600 here. Your silver was worth a gold hundred, and you are more here than the Mexican or Japanese dollar.

The Chinese at home are great bankers and shrewd financiers. The men, especially in North China, are handsome, many of them weighing over 200 pounds, with faces as fair as a Swede's. The Northern people from Shanghai to Pekin look down on the Cantonese in the south. "John," I said to a Shanghai tailor, "how do you like South Chinamen?"

"Me no likee. He bad coolie. Pekin Chinese numbe one, top side."

So the war goes on between the North and South as in Ireland. It is the Hongkong and Shanghai China men who come to America. They do not represent cultured China at all.

The other day I saw

NORTH CHINA WOMAN.

about the decline in silver. It has come like the scourge to China and India.

"Yes," he said, "Mexican dollar get verly small. Chinese tael lose worth one dollar sixty cents, now worth only one dolla. Japanese dolla also same Mexican—no good."

"Shingapore rupee," continued the Chinaman, "once worth 50 cents, now down to 31 cents. Mellcan dolla he 31 lighter. He got gold bellend him. No gold bellend rupee. Fifteen ounce silver once makee ounce gold. Now seventeen—eighteen ounce silver makee ounce gold."

One-fourth of China is taken up with graves. They are usually represented by solid piles of stones, 6 by 12 feet, or by grassy mounds in the shape of cones, fifteen feet in diameter at the bottom and running to a point. They look like little mountains. These graves have been held sacred for centuries, and all descendants of the family buried there go once a year to the grave to worship.

When they built the Woo Sung & Shanghai railroad they removed a few of these graves. This so excited the superstitious feelings of the Chinese that they ripped up the rails and built a Buddhist temple to be erected to appease the wrath of outraged ancestors. These graves interfere with the farms, for many of them are overgrown with weeds. If they were in practical America we would level down these mounds made hundreds of years ago, but superstition and tradition save the Chinaman into reverential worship as he spades up against the graves. These graves are so thick that in many sections it is impossible to plough with a cow.

When I asked Sir Edwin Arnold in CHINESE GRAVES.

Yokohama why the Chinaman always insisted on being buried in China, he said:

It is commanded by Confucius that every Chinaman when he dies shall mingle his dust with his native country. Confucius' saying could just as well be interpreted to mean that Chinese dirt should be sprinkled over the dead body. This could be done as well in California as in Peking, but the Chinaman thinks differently, and he will always be buried in Chinese ground."

The death-rate of children in China, owing to their having no cow's milk, is so great that they are not buried separately. A tower is built over a large vault, with a hole on one side for boys and one on the other for girls, and the children, after being rolled in cloth and matting, are pitched in.

It is an expensive thing to bury a Chinaman. Land has to be bought, a splendid wood coffin looking like an Egyptian sarcophagus made, and then is placed on the lot and covered with a mound of dirt or walled in with stone. There are many large stone buildings in Shanghai where the poor can store the coffins of their friends or relations till they can make money enough to put them in a mound.

When a son loses his father or a wife her husband they go into mourning by wearing old and dilapidated clothes. If you see a woman with uncombed hair and tattered garments she is in mourning. She is literally in sackcloth and ashes.

The other day Mr. Jansen, the proprietor of the Astor house in Shanghai, took us out to see the wonder of China. It is the first Chinese cotton factory with machinery from Lowell and Manchester. Here we saw 500 Chinese weaving, spinning and carding Chinese cotton into cloth. This is the first departure from the old hand loom in China. A few years ago the Chinese tore up the first railroad from Woo Sung to Shanghai and threw the locomotive in the Yangtze river. Mr. Danforth, the superintendent of the cotton factory, tells me that he pays his Chinese women weavers and spinners thirty cents per day or $1 per month. It was amusing to see the women with little four-inch feet hobbling around the looms. Many of them have to tie their shins with a rag. The stronger men about the mill get $5 a month. Boys get from 5 to 8 cents per day. The cotton cloth sells for 7 cents per yard, and is about like 4-cent cloth in America. The cotton used is raised all around the building in the Hwang Poo river bottom. The mill is bought from people at 7 cents per pound. The same short staple cotton would not be worth over 5 cents in New Orleans. The cotton seed is ground and made into oil, which the Chinese are eating in the place of peanut oil. This is only the fore-runner of other cotton factories to come.

When I asked Mr. Jansen, who is also the substantial men of Shanghai, if the railroad would come again to China, he said:

"Yes, it will come again, and the next time to stay. The old railroad paid 12 per cent dividends. The Suez canal has sent ocean steamships to Shanghai instead of the small sailors, and China must establish mill and cotton factories and railroads or her people will starve. During the last famine 4,000,000 people starved because there was no telegraph to bring the news nor railroads to carry back rice and wheat.

Human life is not a priceless article in China. It is often sold. The other day I pointed to a fine, jolly Chinaman in Hankow, about 800 miles up the Yang-tse river, saying:

"That is a very happy-looking man."

"Yes, for a dead man he does look jolly," said the Consul.

"Dead!" I said. "What do you mean?"

"Why, that man is legally a dead man. He was legally executed after the Taiping rebellion and pronounced dead officially."

"What's the puzzling paradox?" I asked.

"Well, that man, like many others, was condemned to die, but, being rich, hired a substitute to be shot for him. There were plenty of starving sons in China who at the command of a father or kill themselves for gain. That Chinaman there paid about $50 to a poor, ignorant brother to take his place, so he really died by proxy. The poor substitute had lived in hunger all his life. With $50 he literally enthroned wealth for three months and then died for it. This often occurs in China. Hundreds of thousands of rebels were massacred after the Taiping rebellion, but the rich generally escaped."

Sound His Child's Life.

J. S. Peterbaugh, York, Neb., says: "I owe my little boy's life to Acker's Cough Cure. He was taken down with cholera morbus; my wife feared, not knowing what to do, but straightway sent and got a 25 cent bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, and gave it according to directions. You never saw a child so sick. A child. His limbs had body were cold. rubbed his limbs and body with my hands, and after I had given him the medicine he went to sleep, and, as my wife says, from a death-bed he was up playing in three hours. It saved his life. I know a doctor if I should there and what is better, it saved my child. I can recommend it with a clear conscience." For sale by druggists.

FRANCE'S FETE.

The Anarchists Propose to Make Trouble Tomorrow if Possible.

PARIS, Sept. 21.—The anarchists are preparing a program of their own for the celebration tomorrow of the anniversary of the proclamation of the French republic by the national convention. They have posted the program of their proposed anarchist celebration over the official programs for the fetes tomorrow. The anarchists take occasion to refer in their programs to the massacre at Fourmies and evidently mean to make things as disagreeable as possible for the authorities. They also allude in their posters to the fete of the Chicago anarchists and use language which can be considered only as inviting to social war. Prince Victor Bonapart has also issued a manifesto in which he declares that September 22 is inseparably associated with the achievements and services of the Bonaparte dynasty, and he adds: "In observing the day you affirm this." The manifesto is addressed to the committee for the procurement of a plebiscite, or popular decision as to the form of government France should have, formed with the object of restoring Imperial rule. The committee last evening voted an address in reply to the prince.

MAY FIGHT HERE.

A Match Between Tommy White and Monday's Champion.

Louis Heilbroner has returned from Chicago, where he saw Tommy White, who engaged in the prize fight at the Princess rink in this city about a year ago.

He says White is in a good condition physically, and is anxious to arrange a match with the winner of the Griffin-Lynch fight, which takes place at Coney Island next Monday night.

Mr. Heilbroner will back White, in whom he has great confidence. The fight, if it is arranged, will take place in this city or vicinity within six weeks.

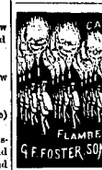
SAYS MRS. ELMA POOL.

"As the Symptoms Speedily Disappeared, I Knew That My Recovery Was Assured."—A Short Story.



MRS. ELMA POOL.

"It was two years ago that I took a heavy cold, which developed into a severe case of general chronic catarrh.

"I was then living at Newark, Ohio," continued this speaker, Mrs. Pool, aged 30 Buchanan street, this city, "and after I came to Fort Wayne my health failed rapidly.

"Both my eyesight and hearing were affected. I had almost incessant headache, frequent attacks of dizziness and had a fever every night. Troubles of the nose and throat occasioned me a great annoyance. I had a cough much like that of a consumptive. I lacked appetite and was miserable both night and day until I went to the Stackhouse Medical Institute and placed my case with them. My improvement under the skillful treatment of those specialists was steady and rapid. The symptoms speedily disappeared and I soon knew that my recovery was assured. I have no hesitancy in recommending the institution to all sufferers."

CHARGES FOR TREATMENT.

Simple Relief of Removing Wrinkles.

It is easier to remove wrinkles than to eradicate any other defect of the face, and yet we daily see many faces, otherwise beautiful, rendered prematurely old by the shrinkage of the flesh and facial wrinkles. A simple, but positive, treatment is Marquard's Rose Cream, which not only disguises wrinkles speedily but also removes pimples, blotches, eruptions, and lends an exquisite glow and transparency to the complexion. Eugene Wiseman, of this city, and Miss Celia Ulrich, of Columbia City, were united in marriage yesterday at the latter place. The groom is clerk at Rich's meat establishment. The young couple will reside on South Calhoun street, where apartments have already been furnished.

The Christian church gave a most enjoyable social last night at their church parlors, and a large number were in attendance. The menu was elaborate, delicious and palatable. The most feature of the supper was the bill of fare, it being an alliteration, each word beginning with the letter "s."

Herbert Fletcher De Cou, son of the well known traveling man, E. C. Cou, of Detroit, arrived on the steamer Seevia last Friday from Hamburg. Mr. Fletcher has been in Berlin, Germany, a student, since he left the University of Michigan, of which college he is a graduate. He has been offered the professorship of Greek and Sanskrit in this university and will probably accept it.

P. A. Randall yesterday purchased through Murray Hartnett, the two vacant lots on Wells street, adjoining the Muncie tracks. The price paid for the property was $7,000. Mr. Randall will erect barns and storage rooms on the property for occupancy by the Randall Storage company, of which he is a heavy stockholder. The building, which will be erected this fall, will cost several thousand dollars.

An unusual amount of interest has been aroused among admirers of high class amusements over the appearance of Madame Janauschek, who will present "Lady Macbeth" at the Masonic Temple tonight to a packed house. Madame Janauschek is a great actress. Her acting is an inspiration—a revelation. She moulds her characters as a potter would a vessel of clay. She seems to hold the character in her hands and so fully to dominate it, as completely to permeate it, that it becomes an inspired creation. In portraying conflicting emotions of a part she is true to a lofty ideal. A splendid company is supporting her.

Last Sunday was a pleasant one for Mr. A. Lamont, of Jefferson township. A large number of the members of the Catholic church in that vicinity gathered at his home and a royal time was had by all. One of the features of the day was a voting contest for a fine gold ring to the most popular young lady. The contestants were the Misses Girardo and Gladis. The excitement increased with each vote until it was at last decided that Miss Girardo had 827 votes to Miss Gladis's 723, which awarded the ring to the former. This contest netted the church the handsome sum of $155. Mr. J. P. Mannel presided over the blackbord while Mr. Begunot received the small sums of money, which eventually made so neat a sum as they were handed in.

The Presbytery of Fort Wayne commenced its regular fall meeting Monday evening in the Presbyterian church, at Warsaw. The Warsaw Times says of the meeting: "Rev. George Mackintosh, of Kendallville, preached the opening sermon. Rev. J. D. Healy, of Auburn, was elected moderator and Rev. J. A. Allen, of Decatur, was elected clerk. This morning the first half hour was a devotional meeting, after which the regular business of the fall session engaged the attention of the Presbytery. "The revision," several "calls" and other important matters were brought before the Presbytery. This evening there will be a popular meeting, and the question will be discussed, "How Can Non-Church Goers be Induced to Attend Church?" The question will be opened by Rev. J. L. Leeper, pastor of the Second Presbyterian church in Fort Wayne, and also by Rev. H. B. Townsend, of Elkhart, to be followed by others. The meeting promises to be very interesting.

A. J. Keller has added to his drug line a fine line of paints, etc.

After refreshments had been ordered to music furnished by the Echo Music club until they played the final "Home Sweet Home."

The following appeared in the Detroit Free Press Sunday: "On Wednesday evening, September 14, Mlle Eva M. Jeu Devine, of this city, was united in marriage to Dr. A. E. Bulson jr., of Fort Wayne, Ind. The ceremony was performed by Rev. E. H. Hayes at the residence of the bride's sister, Miss Elizabeth Jen Devine, No. 16 Adams avenue east. The bride was prettily attired in a gown of white brocade, satin trimmed, with pointe lace and carried a bouquet of bridal roses. The rooms were handsomely decorated with plants and flowers and throughout the evening music was discovered by Sorenson's orchestra. A large circle of friends and relatives were present to offer congratulations to the happy couple. The presents were numerous as costly. The bride is an accomplished young woman, and the groom a promising and well known young physician of Fort Wayne. They enter the marriage state under the most happy auspices. They left for their new home the same evening." Dr. and Mrs. Bulson will be at home next week at the Hamilton house to their friends.

Faggot-voting" in England is practically non-resident voting, one of the politest of British law being that a property holder may cast a ballot in every constituency in which he pays taxes.

Inspectors in the Adirondacks report that more deer die from starvation than on any other cause. They have been well protected of late years that they have multiplied beyond the capacity of the woods to sustain them.

The author of a recently published story thus describes his heroine: "Her eyes were green like olives; her hair was red like sienna, and her complexion in November; berekin resembles thick cream—as fine of texture and as colorless.

A journal published at Constantinople gives some particulars of the mercury mines of Almaden where about 2,000 workmen are employed in this unhealthy industry. The production reaches 55,000 to 60,000 frascos (100 pounds each) per annum.

Among birds that have the power of imitation the parrot is the best; but as a matter of fact, its voice is decidedly inferior to that of the mynah, a species of starling. Curiously enough, the male bird speaks in a high, clear tone, like that of a child, while the female has a gruff voice.

A penniless thief made an odd plea to Mr. Bros, the North London Police court magistrate: "I assure you, sir, I'm innocent; I'm only a kleptomaniac." "Really," replied the magistrate, "I have a capital cure for kleptomania—it is twenty-one days' hard labor, and am told it is quite effectual."

The most valuable gold ore ever mined in the United States, and probably in the world, was a ton containing 300 pounds of quartz, carrying gold at the rate of $30,000 a ton. This quartz was taken from the main shaft of the Mariposa gold mine at Stipeing. Aways from the same lot showed that other portions of it were worth $110,558 a ton.

FRUIT HOUSE.

"Of course, Miss Gulpure," said Mr. Cashmere, tenderly, as he let his hand lie unresistingly in hers, "I fully understand that you have asked me to be yours, not because I am rich and popular, and not because it is Leap Year, but from a genuine affection you have for me; but before accepting your proposal finally I have one question to ask."

"What is it dearest?" she inquired, as she folded her strong arms about him. "What is it?"

"I would like to know," he hesitated, "if, after we are married, if I can continue to buy my clothing of Original Pete?"

"Of course, I would not have you unless you did."
